

July 2005

Redshift Systems, a company specializing in low-cost thermal imaging solutions, has spun out from its parent. “We see vast new opportunities for infrared imaging in markets that previously hadn’t considered it because costs were too high,” said Matthias Wagner, CEO of Redshift. “Now that Redshift has eliminated the cost barrier, customers are pulling us into their applications.”